What You Need to Know About the COVID-19 Vaccines

California's Vaccines

COVID-19 vaccines are here and have been proven to be safe and effective. California is working to make the vaccine available to as many Californians as possible, as soon as possible, under a fair and phased approach based on age, type of work and risk level.

A new unified vaccine delivery system coordinated in partnership with the state and local public health leaders has been optimized for both speed and equity, ensuring disproportionately impacted communities get vaccines.

Currently the state is prioritizing people 65 and older to be vaccinated. Other groups at risk of exposure who work in agriculture and food, education and childcare, and emergency services will be eligible to receive their vaccines once supply becomes available.

Keep wearing your mask even after you have been vaccinated. Wear a Mask, Wash Your Hands, Keep Your Distance.
